Emma Hack's first solo show in Hong Kong at the Cat Gallery

Wednesday, 24 July 2013 10:13

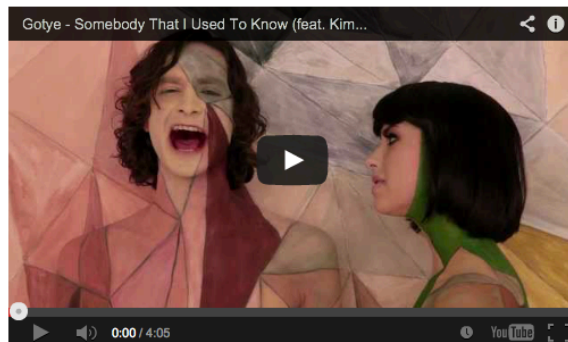

Starting from the 29th of August until the 22nd of September, The Cat Gallery welcomes the body painting surreal artist Emma Hack to showcase her amazing photographic works here in Hong Kong.

From Australia, the artist produces images of camouflaged models in front of patterned backdrops of fantasies and dreams. Mixing the art of photography and painting together, her works give the female body a new meaning, resulting in a mind boggling piece that one could have never imagined. Not only has she exhibited around the world in Australia, London, New York and Singapore; she has also worked with musicians in producing music video footages. In a brief 4 minute video, the 19 hours long worth of painting and work is shown to the audience. Scroll down to enjoy the music video she did with Gotye's 'Somebody That I Used To Know':
